

V. CONCLUSION

Connect Michigan's success in the above initiatives is largely attributable to the strong partnership and vision of the Michigan Public Service Commission over the last five years. Connect Michigan has been privileged to work with the MPSC toward the mutual goal of improving broadband access, adoption, and use throughout the state.

While this report has highlighted many successes under this collaboration, it is evident that additional work remains in order to ensure that all Michigan communities and residents are connected to twenty-first century technology and have the skills and support to use it to its fullest. Connect Michigan, with the enabling framework of its public-private partnership with the MPSC, is uniquely positioned to continue this work and solidify the state's standing in the interconnected global marketplace and economy.